Cragmor Reorganized as Non-Profit Tuberculosis Sanatorium

Cragmor, the million dollar tuberculosis sanatorium, located at the foot of Austin bluffs north of Colorado Springs, today starts a new regime.

Thus an agreement between the old company, the bondholders' committee, and certain individuals, ratified at a meeting of stockholders of the company, the new Cragmor starts out on a career of helpfulness undistracted and untrammled by debts or obligations. The new organization incorporated under the laws of the state of Colorado is a non-profit, non-sectarian body created for benevolent, charitable, and humanitarian purposes for the treatment of tuberculosis and other ailments in connection, as well as for research work.

The new organization, an association, will have a board of directors of five members and an advisory board of trustees. It is formed for perpetuity and is capable of holding and disposing of all estate and of receiving, holding, and disposing of gifts, bequests, and legacies.

Complete disconnection of the bondholders committee consisting of James A. Allen, Frank T. Babson, Edward A. Atwood, William Rager, and Arthur J. Keeney, has resulted in the setting up of the financial difficulties of the old company, the company to go into liquidation, and the liquidation obtained by the new company. Cragmor, the half-million-dollar tuberculosis sanatorium located at the foot of Austin bluffs northeast of Colorado Springs, is undergoing a new regime. An agreement between the old company and the bondholders was 'terminated last month, and under the new organization an announcement of five months and an advisory board of trustees. It is to be run in perpetuity and be capable of holding and disposing of real estate and of receiving and disposing of gifts, legacies, and bequests. Complete control of the bondholders' appropriation consisting of J. M. Miller, Josia Tabor, Edward A. Altman, William Huger and Matt E. Kochenderfer has resulted in the setting of the financial difficulties of the old company, the securing of the property to satisfy a judgment and declare abandoned the 30th National Bank. In the announcement of the new organization with its $100,000 and the reversionary clause to the new organization.

FOR MAKING DEAL

Working expenses and for the last several months, Robert Fite, president of the management committee, and trustee, was in charge of the affairs. Mr. Fite has been absent from the city for some time, but he has brought all the parties together again and is in charge of the management committee.

A NEW INSTITUTION

A new institution is being established in Cragmor. The new director is Dr. A. M. Forster, who has been in charge of the sanatorium for some time. He is a member of the management committee and will be in charge of the affairs. The new institution will be a sanatorium for the treatment of tuberculosis.

Special treatment for a patient

Special treatment for a patient was ordered by the doctor in charge. The patient was suffering from tuberculosis and was placed on a strict diet and given a course of treatment. The patient showed marked improvement and was discharged from the sanatorium.

D. Pathways, C. F. R. Myrton, M. D.,

Lechowlow, R. N., superintendent of the Cragmor sanatorium, said that the sanatorium was functioning very well and that the patients were improving daily. He added that the sanatorium was well equipped and that the nurses were well trained.

SANATORIUM FOUNDED IN 1896

By Dr. Edwin S. Solly

Cragmor was founded in 1896 by Dr. John W. Orton, a physician and surgeon, who had been practicing in Colorado Springs. He founded the sanatorium in the hope of providing a place for the treatment of tuberculosis patients. The sanatorium was originally located on a hillside overlooking the city. It was later moved to its present location on the outskirts of the city.

Photograph shows the building that was established in 1896. It was a small building with a few rooms, but it was sufficient to provide a place for the treatment of tuberculosis patients.

Village, in pictures

Cragmor village was started by the Board of Trustees, who decided to construct a village for the patients. The village was designed to provide a place for the patients to live and work. It included a hospital, a school, and other facilities.

The Sanatorium, as it is known today, was completed in 1910. It is a large building with many rooms, and it is still in use today. The sanatorium is still in operation, and the patients are treated for tuberculosis.
developing it along the lines outlined by Dr. Solly. These included men as the late J. A. Hayes, A. E. Parker, Benjamin Allen, and Charles Carpenter. William A. Otey was also among the number. At that time Dr. Alexia A. Forster was installed as physician-in-chief and he was associated with Craigmore over six years. Dr. George B. Webb and others engaged as consultants. For some three years plans were developed and worked out for a large building which would provide Craigmore with equipment and accommodations suitable and modern in every way.

The firm of Anser & Thomas, local architects, who had worked with Dr. Solly on the plans for the original plant, was engaged for the new plans. In collaboration with them, Dr. Forster, who had had training and experience in sanatorium architecture in the east, attempted to carry out in a large building the idea of privacy and comfort which had motivated Dr. Solly in his original development.

INCREASE CAPACITY TO 60 IN 1914

During that period, Arthur Billing was a patient at Craigmore. He had been a valued member of the staff and had designed for him his private yacht, and his famous soundproof room in his New York residence. After a year of intensive work on the part of Mr. Billing and Dr. Forster, the detail of the interior arrangement of the building, the architects drew the plans and in the spring of 1914 the new Craigmore was opened. The capacity of the institution had then been increased from 22 to 60 patients.

Following his return from the army in 1919, Dr. Forster recommended to the board of directors that an additional story be added to the main building and that various alterations be made in some of the other buildings. These changes brought the capacity of the sanatorium to 100 patients.

Shortly thereafter Craigmore was founded at and in 1927 the sanatorium was further expanded by the addition of 30 apartment units. Developed in keeping with the other buildings.

VILLAGE, NURSES HOME FEATURES

Craigmore Village was started by a Mrs. Adams of Buffalo, N. Y., whose daughter had been a patient in the institution. She constructed a small cottage on the grounds of the Craigmore and on her departure, left the institution to her.

Then the sanatorium was enlarged, Forester, A. B. Osborne and W. M. Cutler, the architects, were engaged in the work and they extended and improved the sanatorium to the extent of making it a modern hospital. has a new era of usefulness opened to it thru settlement of its affairs last week. A group of cottages of the institution at the right do not show in this picture.

CRAMOR FOUNDED 1864
BY DR. EDWARD S. SOLIS
Cramor was founded in 1864 by Dr. Edward S. Solis, an international authority on tuberculosis, and for many years one of the leading specialists in Colorado Springs. He was convinced that the springs and the Fikes peak region offered the ideal location for a sanatorium devoted to the care of the tuberculous. With the aid of Gen. William J. Palmer, founder of the city, Dr. Solis opened a small institution on the edge of the city.

In 1916 a group of prominent Colorado Springs residents purchased the institution and the land for a home for the tuberculous. The group included Dr. E. D. A. Shaver, H. C. Canfield, Benjamin Allen, and Charles Glidden. William A. Gill was also among the members.

At that time, Dr. Alfred T. Forster was installed as physician-in-chief and he has been associated with Cramor ever since. Since that time, Dr. Forster and others have engaged in a campaign to increase the capacity of the institution. For three years plans were developed and work was started for a new building which would provide Cramor with the latest in equipment and accommodations.

In 1945 Dr. Forster opened the new facility to care for patients suffering from tuberculosis. The new building is a state-of-the-art facility.

The management has made a great deal of effort to ensure the well-being of patients.

CRAMOR INCREASED CAPACITY

TO 10 IN 1944

During the war period, Arthur Ellison was a patient at Cramor. He had tuberculosis and was not expected to live. He and his family were homeless and had no place to go. A local family took him in and helped him. He eventually recovered and returned to his family.

Today, Cramor is a state-of-the-art facility with modern equipment and facilities.

MURDER HERE, MY FICTION MURDERS X MARKS SPOTS

By DAVE HARRISON

Associated Press Staff Writer

DARE, Colorado, July 24 — "X" stands for murder. Murder! The word is on the lips of every person in this little town in the heart of the Colorado mountains.

"X" is the symbol used in the mystery novels of Agatha Christie, a detective-story writer who has made a name for herself with her novels and short stories. It has been used in the past to represent murder, and it is now being used to represent murder in the United States.

"X" marks the spot where the murder was committed. In this case, the murder was committed in the town of Dare, Colorado.

The town fathers have decided to reorganize the Cragmor Sanatorium, a non-profit institution that has been in existence since the early 1900s. The new organization will be called the Cragmor Reorganized Sanatorium.

The new organization will be run by a board of directors, consisting of five members. The board will be responsible for the management of the institution, and will be elected by the shareholders of the institution.

The shareholders of the institution will be the residents of Dare, Colorado, who are currently the owners of the institution.

The new organization will be located at the same site as the current institution, and will continue to provide the same services.

The new organization will be governed by a set of bylaws, which will be adopted by the shareholders of the institution.

The bylaws will provide for the election of the board of directors, and for the election of the shareholders of the institution.

The bylaws will also provide for the appointment of a president, who will be elected by the board of directors.

The president will be responsible for the management of the institution, and will be responsible for the appointment of the other officers of the institution.

The bylaws will also provide for the appointment of a treasurer, who will be responsible for the financial affairs of the institution.

The treasurer will be responsible for the preparation of the annual budget of the institution, and for the preparation of the annual report of the institution.

The annual report will be submitted to the shareholders of the institution, and will be published in a newspaper of the town of Dare, Colorado.
