

A large number of claims have been located in the Cheyenne mining district during the past summer and fall, some of which promise rich developments. There certainly must be some prospect of mineral in this locality or so much money would not be expended in sinking holes. We understand that work will be continued on many of the claims during the entire winter by the owners, and we hope that before spring mineral will be unearthed that will give the district a boom unequalled by any other in Colorado.